AMERICA cannot afford to close her doors to emigrants from the old world We want them; we want them out west : we want good honest industrious families of all nations, to make homes smong us. By their toil they made this country what it is to-day, We want more of the Europeans who have the snap energy and phy-ical condition of our forefathers. What we do not want is is the scum, the lazy vagabond, the thief and criminal. A man who cannot furnish a certificate of character from his countrymen ought never to be allowed to mingle with them in America. It is time that the honest emigrant, who is a credit to his native country took held of the matter and not compel Uncle Sam to hear the entire burden of making angels out of outlaws.

THE constitutional convention bill provides that 'he framers may in their descretion provide for the election of state officers at the same time that the constitution is voted on. Those who advocate this step do so on the ground that if we are admitted this coming winter we can take hold at once without the formality of an election and can place two senators in congress almost immediately. Those opposed to it believe that there is a job in the whole inception of the statehood scheme to place the schemers in fat offices. This latter objection is hardly well taken inasmuch as the bill was drawn up by a republican and its strongest supporters or "schemers" as some are pleased to name them, were republicans and they still advocate this plan of electing officers. As the territory is democratic by a large majority and the election of democrats to office is as sured it scarcely seems plausable that the republican leaders would put up a job of that kind.

STORIES ABOUT MEN.

The Brilliant Idea That Struck Seed

When Senator Palmer recently took a score of prominent men to the Michigan club reunion at Detroit, there were a few incidents of the trip that the senator has thut far kept quiet. Among the diversions offered to his guests the senator suggested a trip to his log house, a few miles from the city. A party was made up, and the keeper of the rural retreat was told to get up a dinner for fiteen persons. But in some way the word got round that Senater Palmer was going to give a "grand spread" at his log house, and when he and his guests started for their drive through the woods they were surprised to find other vagon loads going in the same

"I think," said the senator, "that it would be safe to raiss that dinner order to twenty-

According y he stepped into a store that sad a telephone and raised his order to twenty-five. When the log house was reached, the senator was appalled to find about 200 hungry and thirsty individuals awaiting his dinner. They were not inter-lopers, but nen of distinction in Michigan attending the club reunion, and the senator's natural hospitality inclined him to treat

"But what shall I do?" appealed the distracted steward. "Dinner for twenty-five and here are 2001"

"Can't you kill a Jersey cow!"
"There isn't time."
But here a brilliant idea struck the senator "Why, I'll tell you what to do," he said. "We'll call it a lunch, not a dinner. Dinner for twenty-five ought to make lunch for 200." And thereupon the "lunch" was spread. That it was a success is indicated by the remark of one of his Washington guests.

"Palmer," said he, "as a 'dinner' this is triffe light; but as a 'lunch' it's the finest thing I ever saw in my life."—Ne. Vork

He Got the Job

When Amos Cummlags arrived in New York, after the war, he had a most excellent York, after the war, he had a most excellent opportunity to be a tramp. All he possessed seside a job lot of ragged clothes en his back was twenty cents' worth of postage stamps badly glued together. He wore a pair of battered cavalry boots and about three-quarters of a pair of trousers. The place where the missing parts of the latter should have been was concealed by a sunburned army overcoat. In this garb he climbed up to Illorace Greeley's editorial den and asked to Horaco Greeley's editorial den und asked Mr. Greeley for a job. He did not ask to be appointed to either the position of managing land. The fulle editor or foreman. He was willing to do suy-thing.

"No place for you," squeaked Mr. Grealey, without turning from his deak to look at the applicant, "don't you see I'm busy? G'way! Scat! Damit!"

"But I tell you I must have a job." Mr Orceley turned around his revolving chair, and glaring at Cummings, said: "Musti For what reason, young man, do you say

"For this reason," replied Amos, turning his back on Mr. Greeley, lifting the drapery of his old blue overcoat and exhibiting the vacant places where the wild winds had wnistled through his trousers. He got the job.—J. Amory Knox.

He Had a Winning Way. A few years ago the Episcopal diocese of Kentucky appeared to be torn up with dissensions about high and low church. The bishop unfortunately allowed his sympathies to be drawn out to one party as against the other, and thereafter becoming disheartened and d scouraged, resigned. The present bishop, when called to the diocese, was determined to ignore these dissensions, and if possible to harmonize his people. For some time no one was able to discover whether his sympathies were with one or the other party sympathies were with one or the other party until, an occasion presenting itself in a social circle, a lady (with the curiosity of her sex) said: "Bishop, what are your views! We can't find out. Are you high church or low church? Instantly the bishop replied:
"Madam, I am high, low, Jack and the game." There are no dissussions now.—Pittsburg Post.

Two Very Different Relations. He said that Col. Smith, of Missouri, had twice been an unsuccessful candidate for con-gressional honors before the people. A local politician of some note, whom the colonel had time and again assisted financially, was had time and again assisted financially, was opposed to him in politics, and therefore worked and voted against him. A few days after the second defeat of Col. Smith for congress he met his friend, who asked him for a loan of $50.

"Look here, Sam," said the colonel, "how is it that when I run for office you always oppose me, but when you went money you never fail to come to me?"

"I'll tell you, colonel," replied Sam. "Politically I am opposed to you, but financially I am your friend.—Denver News.

A Rather Frank Admission.

At a recent ga hering of Uniterians, one speaker recited an anecdote which admits t large and varied application. It was the story of a minister who, preaching on exchange, said some strong things about far horses. He was told after the sermon that h had touched one of their best members at a tender point. "Well," said the preacher, "I cannot change my sermon for him." In the evening the man was introduced to the min ister, who said: "I understand that what ) said touched one of your weaknesses. I as sure you that I was altogether unconscious or the weakness when I said it." "Oh, do no trouble yourself," said the man. "It is a ver, poor sermon that does not hit me some ver poor sermon that does not hit
